

WHO is Sustainable Wallingford?

These are some of the people who've been to Sustainable Wallingford meetings. Lots more friends and neighbors are keeping informed at www.sustainablewallingford.us

- Abby Klingbeil works in marketing at the UW and is in the Master's program at the Evan's School. She is interested in sustainable gardening and in equity issues and started the www.GrowingFoodGrowingCommunity.org urban food garden network.
- Akiva Notkin is interested in vegetable gardens, biking to school and having friends in the neighborhood.
- Anne Fote, a yogi, parent, and medical professional. She is especially interested in making sure Wallingford stays a community and worries about the negative community effects of traffic and noise
- Arvia Morris, is a scientist at a biotech company who is leading Climate Dialogs in Wallingford www.climatedialogs.org
- Bob Baines, Seattle Parks crew chief with expertise in urban landscape restoration for wildlife corridors.
- Cathy Tuttle, 25-year Wallingford resident and city planner recently returned from a year in Sweden studying sustainable city planning. She runs the family-friendly urban bike ride Spokespeople www.Spokespeople.us and is active in SCALLOPS (Sustainable Communities ALL Over Puget Sound) www.scallops.sustainableballard.org, www.seattlegreenschools.org and www.coolmom.org
- Christie Rodgers who has children attending both Hamilton Middle School and John Stanford International School. Christie has been active in school PTSAs and she has worked to create a community within her immediate neighborhood. She'd like to build an even stronger community. Christie rides her bicycle on neighborhood errands.
- Connie Voget is interested in climate change and emergency preparations and has started a Climate Dialogs group www.climatedialogs.org
- Cyrus Appell has lived for 20 years in Seattle but just a few years in Wallingford. He did street theater in New York and Berkeley, helped start the People's Bank in Berkeley, and works now as a hospice MD
- David Notkin, a professor at UW interested in community building
- David Sielaff who has two young children, participates in block parties, but wants to do more to address carbon capping and global warming.
- Diane Turner, who is interested in sustainable food growing, Passegiata walks and helps to organize Wallingford Meaningful Movies www.meaningfulmovies.org
- Elizabeth Strauss visited from the east side and was interested in emergency preparation
- Emily Nuchols, a recent college graduate interested in Green Schools, and adult and youth literacy. Emily works for Save Our Wild Salmon www.wildsalmon.org
- Eugene Martin, a Northgate resident and friend of Wallingford who is "an active listener"
- Genevieve Vayda, a long time South Wallingford land use activist, architect and urban planner
- Heartie Anne Brewer, a Sustainable Capitol Hill founder www.sustainablecapitolhill.org who has a P-patch garden and helped start Sustainable Capitol Hill neighborhood walks.
- Jadyne Reichner was visiting Wallingford and works for WSU Natural Resources. She is active in the Organic Seed Alliance www.seedalliance.org and the sustainable Port Townsend group Local 2020 www.l2020.org She is also part of www.relocalize.net/groups/sequim and www.postcarbon.org
- James Whitaker, who is interested in P-patch gardens, learned about Sustainable Wallingford at the caucuses.
- Janet Stillman, the office manager for Weaving Wallingford, the neighborhood office behind Tully's. She is interested in building community. www.wallingford.org
- Jarad Barkeim, whose interests in sustainability includes bicycle transportation and happiness
- Jean Darsie has lived in Ballard for more than 30 years. She is retired from KC Community Services, and works now with homeless issues and Women in Black <http://www.scn.org/womeninblack>
- Judy Stoloff is interested in food gardens and bicycling
- Jun Akutsu, started a transformational group www.indrasrainbow.org
- Karen Leutjen, Executive Director of Seattle Tilth www.seattletilth.org, a Wallingford-based regional organization that inspires and educates people to garden organically, conserve natural resources and support local food systems in order to cultivate a healthy urban environment and community

- Kate Speltz sees sustainability as improving economic and social justice
- Kathleen Crompt, director of the Wallingford Senior Center www.wallingfordseniors.org, wants to build community, to help with walking tours, and make community kitchens work
- Kay Horner grew up in Wallingford. She went to school at Lincoln and is interested in emergency preparedness and community building, including helping her neighbor Sharon during the winter holiday.
- Kelly Cannon wants to encourage a sense of community in Wallingford
- Laura Brady, a Lettuce Link www.solid-ground.org employee passionate about urban gardening
- Lev Klarnet, a 5th grade student who loves sports and wants more crosswalks so he can safely walk to playgrounds with basketball hoops
- Lynn Fitz-High, has interests that range from reducing carbon footprints, food gardens, a family-based peace group, and teaching young adults a class on imagining a sustainable world
- Mary Heim, a GIS professional, P-patch gardener, and volunteer in a number of capacities in Wallingford groups including President of the Wallingford Community Council www.wallingford.org
- Michael Kucher is an Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences professor at UW Tacoma
- Michael Smith, is involved in helping to organize tree fruit harvests for Solid Ground www.seattlepi.nwsourc.com/local/328216\_fruit19.html
- Michelle Bates-Benetua, Lettuce Link Coordinator and Hunger Resource Center activist for Solid Ground www.solid-ground.org, a Wallingford-based regional social service agency
- Mike Ruby has lived here for 40 years, and is working on starting a Wallingford Community Center.
- Mona Memmer wants to help build a pedestrian-friendly neighborhood with a good community feeling
- Peter Clitherow came with his 8-year-old daughter Sonja. Peter was part of the New Jersey green movement in the 1980s and has been working on energy retrofits of his own house in Wallingford for the past 15 years. He has tried a variety of energy sources including solar and ground source heat pumps and finds his biggest savings is through insulation. He was part of the last Wallingford home tour showing how his house saves at least 50% in energy costs.
- Rich Gamble is a Pastor at Keystone Church www.uccwebsites.net/keystonecongseattlewa.html interested in community building
- Rich Voget is a neighbor concerned about his carbon footprint who recently biked across America.
- Rick Turner organizes a weekly Friday night movie series www.Meaningfulmovies.org that shows political, socially interesting, or environmental films every Friday night at 7 p.m. at Keystone Church. What especially distinguishes this film series, in addition to showing good and rarely seen movies, is the panel discussions that follow, with people with expertise in the issues presented in the movies invited to comment. Typically 50 to 100 socially interested people come to this weekly event.
- Sarah Kuck started an internet forum www.Seattledirt.org for under-reported ideas in local environmental and social justice. Sarah also teaches a summer community yoga class at Meridian Park on Sunday mornings at 10AM and works as a reporter for www.Worldchanging.com
- Sharon Ehrig is known for her elaborate Santa's House at 39th and Woodlawn. She started a Block Watch group that evolved as her neighbors and the city became more emergency prepared. She rides an electric scooter and will help out getting more neighbors involved in emergency preparedness.
- Sherry Reynolds, long time resident and political activist who works in health care now and affordable housing in the past. Sherry was volunteer coordinator for the Howard Dean campaign. She lives in a "sailboat in the sky," a small apartment.
- Steve Krival is a student of environmental toxicology at UW and wants to help with making home environments more toxic free and sustainable
- Susan Ernsdorff is a gardener interested in vegetables and fruit trees who works for Seattle Public Utilities
- Suzanne Nelson-Pittle wants to learn how she can help with sustainability in Wallingford, and is interested in how to dispose of electronics thoughtfully.
- Teri Barry is an event producer with a 12-year-old. Teri has run a program of electronics recycling at the local JSIS elementary school www.jsisweb.com
- Tim Smith is a divinity graduate and one of the guiding forces who created Mosaic Community Coffee House www.mosaiccoffeehouse.org

Sustainable Wallingford is dedicated to holding and moving forward ideas that are bubbling up in the community about how to live on one planet with joy and grace. We work to support the sustainable goals and aspirations of all of the wonderful people and institutions that build the Wallingford community. www.sustainablewallingford.us